The User may prepare, use, display, reproduce and distribute derivative works thereof for any non-commercial purpose that promotes public health education, subject only to the following limitations and disclaimers, which are hereby acknowledged by the User.

The User agrees that User will not substantially alter the meaning of the HHS Content or otherwise misrepresent the HHS Content in whole or in part. The intention of this clause is to ensure that the integrity of the individual messages and the HHS Content overall are maintained in any derivative works that the User prepares.

All exact copies of the HHS Content must include this copyright and permission notice:

© Texas Health and Human Services

The User agrees that this Content User Agreement will be provided to any party to whom the User distributes the HHS Content, and that it will apply to the distributee. The User agrees to include the following acknowledgment statement in each reproduction of the HHS Content that the User displays or distributes:

"The original version of this content was developed by Texas Health and Human Services, an agency of the State of Texas (HHS). HHS provided this content 'as is' without warranty of any kind. This content has been altered from its original version and represents a derivative work."

If the User reproduces photographs and other HHS Content in any media, the User will obtain HHS permission to clearly mark all such HHS Content with this copyright and permission notice underneath each image:

"© Texas Health and Human Services"

If there are multiple images, one attribution per page at the bottom of the page is acceptable.

The User agrees that it will not use the HHS logo or any HHS trademarks without permission from HHS, but will ensure that all HHS Content contains HHS-approved logos and/or copyright and permission statements.

The User will not imply endorsement by HHS. The User may not use HHS's name or logo in any advertising.

The HHS Content does not indicate a course of treatment or serve as a standard of medical care or advice.

HHS disclaims responsibility for any liability attributable to the User's use of the HHS Content. HHS does not warrant or assume any legal liability or responsibility for the accuracy, completeness, usefulness, or fitness for a particular purpose of the information contained in the HHS Content.

If you have questions or require additional information, please contact Angela Gil, 512-341-4590.

Sincerely,

Amanda Hovis, Director
